BOOK SUMMARY
Anna Tate is an anti-social seventeen year old who has always lived to please her cruel and abusive mother. When Anna's mother sends her to live with her estranged grandfather leaving the only home she has ever known she is forced to confront who she really is without the influence of her mother. Anna is befriended by the handsome but taken next door neighbor and clings to him for emotional support and inevitably falls in love but soon becomes lost and desperate when he does not return her love.

Anna's life becomes a journey of love, obsession, unrequited emotions and self-discovery as she is forced to choose between a boy that reminds her of home and the unrequited love she's always known and her true love, the one she's carried in her heart for four years. If she takes the chance on true love she could lose the one thing that has reminded her that life is worth living, his heart.
