"... To Form A More Perfect Union...": Justice For American Women; Report Of The National Commission On The Observance Of International Women's Year 1976 Report of the National Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year 1976
"Jane M. D'Alelio incorporated into the cover design the official emblem of the United Nations in observing International Women's Year. Valerie Pettis designed that emblem to illustrate the themes of IWY: Equality, Development, and Peace. The design employs the mathematical symbol for equality, the feminine symbol, and the dove of peace." "To The Reader: This is, first of all, a report to the President. It is also a report to the women and men of the United States and so it is put together in a way that is unusual for Presidential commission reports. The first three parts are designed to impart to readers a sense of some of the barriers that keep women from participating in American life as full partners. The Commission divided into committees to study these problems, then came together again as a unit to adopt 115 recommendations. Thus, the first three parts refer to Commission action as a whole, not to actions of its separate committees. Part IV lists the members of the Commission. Part V contains the findings and the recommendations of the working committees. These are addressed to the various agencies of Government---Federal, State, and local---which will be responsible for their implementation. Women and women's organizations are also addressed in a number of the recommendations. Useful reference material and original research, authorized by the Commission, are summarized in Part VI, the Appendix." [from book]
