Evidence of Trust: Romantic Suspense (Colorado Trust Series Book 1) Stacey Joy Netzel
Resort wrangler Brittany Lucas was looking forward to one last summer of freedom before returning to Chicago to work for her demanding CEO father. Instead, her independence is stripped when a new ranger restricts park access while he searches for a poacher killing animals in Rocky Mountain National Park. She understands Tall, Dark, and Sexy has a job to do, but his cocky, my-way-or-the-highway authority fuels her resentment.

Ranger Joel Morgan is used to having the upper hand in all his cases, so he's thoroughly frustrated by the beautiful, stubborn blond complicating the hell out of his investigation. The constant desire to kiss her smart mouth shut isn't helping matters.

Sparks fly as the two fight each other for the upper hand while doing their best to resist a sizzling chemistry that refuses to be ignored. Then the stalker turns his sights on Brittany, and Joel discovers he'll do whatever it takes to protect her—even give his own life.

EXCERPT:

"Find anything interesting up there?" Randy Gifford asked.

"Just a camper in a restricted area."

"You think it could be the guy you're looking for?"

"It's a woman. Camping where she shouldn't be. I'm going to make sure she leaves in the morning, then return to my original route."

"You may want to reconsider. That storm front I mentioned earlier is moving a lot faster than expected. It's over the Never Summer Mountain Range and will reach your area tonight. Temperature's dropping, too, so be prepared."

Joel surveyed the heavy, gray clouds he'd noticed earlier. "What are they forecasting?"

"If it keeps moving, a couple inches. If it stalls, up to a foot."

He muttered a curse. That would be a problem. "If that happens, we could be up here for a few days, so yeah, scrap the original route. The closest trailhead is Longs Peak, can you get someone to drop off my truck and trailer over there in the morning?"

"Will do."

Five minutes later, he rode back into Brittany Lucas's camp as she threw a couple pieces of wood on the campfire that'd been nothing but banked coals when he left. She brushed off her hands before bracing them on her hips.

“Now what?”

He dismounted to unpack his gear. “I’ll be camping here with you tonight.”

“Ranger Morgan, let me assure you, I have every intention of leaving in the morning.”

“And until then, I’ll make sure you stay safe.”

“I don’t need you to babysit me,” she insisted, irritation flooding her voice as she sat by the fire.

Ignoring the fact she’d heard him earlier, he met her stare over the top of Nobel’s saddle. “You got a gun?”

Her gaze faltered. “No.”

“Well, the poacher does, so I’m staying.” That shut her up, until he tossed his sleeping bag inside her tent.
